Mind Cardio

Alright.
Let's do this

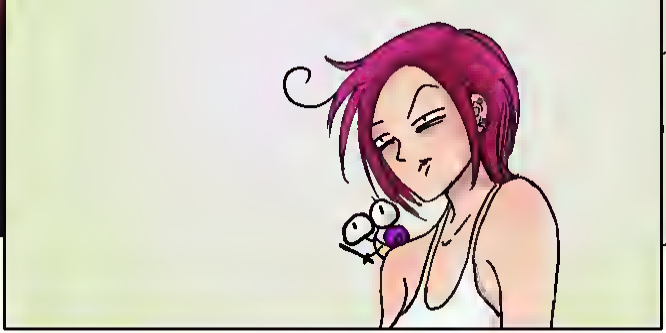
Let's.
Art Block



He wins.
Aidyn, you didn't even try—
He wins.
Victory

celebratory dance.

I was hitting an art block,
and consulted a group of webtoon artists,

Here are their advices

"Make a strip about the anxiety of writers block and deadlines."
Josh Ulrich
(Newman)

"Start digging through the trash."
(for old discarded ideas)

Jeremy Kaye
(Up and Out)

"I've learned that I just have to trust myself from the past and just pick one (an idea) and draw."
Chris Hallbeck
(Maximumble)

"I'll either ignore it and walk away
until the last minute...
Sometimes it'll turn out funny and other times it'll be garbage and the shame will spur me into creating something better the next time."
Megan McKay
(Doodle for Food)

"Get in a fight & lose."
Shen
Blue Chair

Comic inspired by the words of the wise Webtoon artists.
The only cardio I've done lately is running out of ideas.

So how do you guys battle artist's block?
